

INTRO

Hey there - Thomas from Marathon Handbook here. Thanks for taking the time to grab a copy of this plan!

As the name suggests, this plan is for those of you looking to run a 'just finish' - you want to reach the finish line, and preferably as comfortably as possible, but you've got few aspirations about finishing time or your relative finishing position.

100 miles is no joke - it's almost 4 marathons back-to-back!

For most runners, the goal is simply to finish - or finish in a respectable time - so this training plan is based all around getting miles in!

Here are a couple of articles and resources we've published on 100 mile training and racing you may find useful:

How To Run 100 Miles: Essential Guide

10 Expert Tips For Your First 100 Mile Ultra

CUSTOMIZING THE PLAN

No two runners are the same, and there's no such thing as a one-size-fits-all plan. That's why I make all my plans easy to customize: use the Google Sheets or Excel version of this plan to move things around to suit your weekly schedule, shorten or extend the plan, and mix up the workouts to suit your ability level.

In order to edit the file, please download it or make a copy (File>Make a Copy)

MEDICAL DISCLAIMER

This plan is for informational purposes only: it is not a certified exercise / health / wellness regime. Partake in run training at your own risk, always consult a doctor before starting a new exercise regime, and don't do anything stupid. Now let's get on with the details...

EASY TO START WITH?

Many runners grabbing a copy of this plan will find the starting weekly mileage LESS than what they're currently booking - if you're in this camp, my advice is to stick to your current weekly mileage until the plan catches up with you. Remember that the plan is designed to get runners ready to run 100k over 26 weeks; it's not necessary that they're doing 40-mile weeks on week 1. It's a gradual build-up. You can always scan the plan and figure out where it would suit you best to jump in.

BREAKDOWN OF TRAINING WORKOUTS

Training Runs

These are foundational of your training: they build up your weekly mileage, and can help you recover after the harder days.

I recommend running the easy runs at an comfortable, conversational pace - think around 3-4 / 10 Rate of Perceived Exertion.

Pace Run

These are medium-distance runs designed to be run at your target race pace, if you have one - if not, just aim to push 10% harder than your regular runs,

Strength Training

Many runners simply neglect cross-training - but the benefits have such a huge impact on your running game, it's hard to ignore.

Here's our complete guide to weightlifting for runners.

Long Runs

The key to long run success is to go at a slow, easy pace. Don't worry about speed at all - long runs are all about building endurance and getting time on your feet - NOT about speed.

Having said that, it is certainly beneficial to perform the occasional long run at a faster pace. Check out my long run video for more:

LONG RUNS: Training Tips, Pace, Distance, How To Fuel + More!

Rest Days

Rest means no strenuous activity! Focus on restful and pleasurable activities: walks in nature, time with family, enjoying good food, watching movies.

This may seem indulgent, but these activities send your body into 'rest and recover' mode (vs fight or flight mode) and your body will focus on healing.

TrainingPeaks 100 Mile Just Finish Training Plan - Get The App!

Want to get an interactive version of this plan on the TrainingPeaks app, which allows you to track your own runs against the plan and provides further guidance?

Here is the 100 Mile Just Finish Training Plan on TrainingPeaks!

Ultra Runner's Playbook

Take your training further with my Ultra Runner's Playbook. With over 6 hours of exclusive video tutorials and loads of bonus downloads, I've poured everything I've learned about ultrarunning over the years into this course. Whether it's injury-prevention, nutrition, or some race day strategies and road-tested tips, I've squeezed everything in here.

Check Out The Ultra Runner's Playbook!

Questions?

Check out our Marathon Handbook Facebook Group, it's an awesome community of runners sharing their knowledge, frustrations, and wins!

Unfortunately I can't respond to individual queries these days, but the FB group is probably an even better source of running wisdom!

Share your training and wins with us over on Instagram!